

Rewired

A one-day training to overcome the digital generation gap and the barriers it presents for both youth and adults.

3-part Workshop Series:

Understanding i-Kids

Digital immigrant adults have difficulty understanding how and why teen digital natives are so immersed in this always-on, always-connected anytime world. Examine teen culture of past generations and of today to better understand how differently youth and adults view society and their roles in it. Strategies for working with teens in a blended world are developed.

Technology & the Teenage Brain

New research is demonstrating that technology is actually rewiring our brains, and the more we use it the more our brain changes. This highly interactive workshop reviews current research and offers insights into the changing teenage brain, providing techniques to improve relationships and interactions between adults and teenagers.

Bridging the Generation Gap

This workshop provides the foundation for working with youth and engaging them in meaningful ways. The best way to bridge the generation gap between youth and adults is through a four-step process: rethinking, understanding, engaging and surviving.
